

DEX Radio Macrobiotic

*Dex: Male 25-40s easy going, relatable, always helpful everyman
Woman, mid- to late-twenties. Realistic, relatable, not a caricature, slightly neurotic.*

Girl: Dex, I just finished a two week all-natural macrobiotic cleansing diet and I'm looking for a place to eat. Someplace with real food. I need your help.

Dex: That's what I'm here for. The new Dexknows.com is even better than before, and lets you search local restaurants by cuisine, neighborhood, even rating.

Girl: Forget ratings. I had wheat germ and raw coconut husks for breakfast. I'm not too picky.

Girl: Rice cakes. Rice crackers. Rice pasta. Rice milk. I've had it up to here with rice. Anything less ricey?

Dex: With the new Dexknows.com, restaurants are broken out into all kinds of different cuisines and grouped by category. How does Mexican sound?

Girl: Week two was beans. Kidney beans, pinto beans, garbanzo beans, fava beans. No beans.

Dex: Italian? Toscano's on Oak has a special today on their famous Fettucini Alfredo. 52 people gave it 5 stars and you can even see a street view. I have street views now.

Girl: Alfredo. That's not like alfalfa right? Because I've had enough alfalfa to last a lifetime. Just thinking about it makes me dizzy.

Dex: Do you want to see a doctor? I can recommend three in your neighborhood.

Girl: How about a hospital? The food would be an improvement.

AVO: The new Dexknows.com. More exact. More detailed. A lot more local. Dex knows.
